

Tenuta Ammiraglia Alie 2020

Climatic trend

The growing season was marked by abundant rainfall in autumn, followed by a mild winter and above-average temperatures in spring, resulting in surprisingly stable growth throughout our vineyards. While the summer weather was hot and dry, sea breezes from the nearby Tyrrhenian coast mitigated the effect of the daytime temperatures, enabling the grapes to ripen well. The harvest, which began during the last week of August, yielded perfect grapes rich in fresh, fruity aromas. The brief periods of rainfall in September enabled the later varieties to mature well, resulting in grapes with excellent phenolic ripeness and exquisite aromas.

Vinification and ageing

Alie's secret lies in the combination of the features of the terroir, the management of the vineyard and, of course, the human element. Once harvested, the grapes are quickly transported to the cellar in order to protect the bunches. One of the highlights of Alie's production is the pressing stage. In the absence of oxygen, the bunches are loaded whole into the press. The pressure applied during this phase is of the utmost softness and delicacy. This process, together with the careful selection of the must and its subsequent decanting for no less than 12 hours, eliminates all the vegetal components that could otherwise make the wine unpleasant. Fermentation took place in stainless steel vats at a controlled temperature of less than 20°C. After ageing on fine lees for a few months, including a subsequent period in the bottle, Alie 2020 is finally ready to entice and captivate imbuing each sip with passion.

Organoleptic Notes

Alie 2020 boasts a soft pink colour with delicate, peach-like hues. The elegant array of aromas make it a one-of-a-kind wine. Characterised by strong citrus notes, such as pink grapefruit, and floral notes that blend together seamlessly and beautifully enhance each other, it leaves a very pleasant after-taste. Hints of peach and grapefruit and aromas of tropical fruit, such as passion fruit and mango, stand out on the palate. Shortly after, hints of Mediterranean herbs, like thyme, sage and rosemary begin to appear. This rich and highly sensual wine is tangy and has a lovely mineral quality when tasted.
